The Certificate in Intercultural Leadership is a 2-3 year program that brings together a dynamic group of students to cultivate their unique leadership potential to make a difference in the world. Students will synthesize their intercultural learning from academic work, retreats, mentoring, study abroad experiences, co-curricular activities, and a self-designed leadership project. This synthesis of their experiences requires that students have the ability to integrate theory with practice. The program emphasizes the importance of intercultural competence and knowledge, as students learn alongside local, national, and international women leaders to see how change happens in a variety of real world contexts.
