What does it mean to participate in the résumé drop only?

If your company or organization participates in the résumé drop only, this means you will not have representatives at the expo to collect résumés of students. However, résumés will be collected upon your company or organization's behalf during the expo and sent following the expo for your review and consideration. This option is of particular interest to those who cannot physically send a representative to the expo due to scheduling conflicts, staffing issues, or other factors.

How is the internship expo marketed to students?

The Cross Currents Program and Career Crossings Office works closely with faculty members who oversee internships for credit to publicize the expo. The CCO also uses electronic marketing methods such as e-mail, Twitter, Facebook, and website calendars and announcements, as well as traditional methods such as fliers and posters.

Which students are invited to attend the expo?

All students from all majors and classes are invited and encouraged to attend the expo. Students will have access to the information provided in the employer/organization registration to prepare and be aware of the specific preferences of each employer/organization.

Our company/organization only has internships for one semester of the year and is not currently looking to recruit additional students at this time. Can we still attend the expo?

Certainly! Your organization/company is more than welcome to attend in order to recruit students for future internship opportunities and use this opportunity as a vehicle to spread the word about your company/organization on campus.

When do Saint Mary's students participate in internships?

Most students participate in summer internships, but some participate in South Bend area internships in the fall and spring.

Are accommodations available to conduct interviews with students?

Yes, the CCO can arrange for interviews, if necessary. Please contact Kim Patton at kpatton@saintmarys.edu to make arrangements.
